✦ For my family ✦

To my wife and our daughters,

Thank you for giving me the room to explore the strange little worlds I love, and for supporting me through every step of bringing this one to life.

And especially to my youngest daughter, who inspired me to turn frightening legends into little creatures children could love. You may not love horror, but your love for these characters helped me create a world you could enjoy without being scared.

This adventure exists because of you.

With all my love.

Here in the mysterious forest, most creatures slept when the woods got dark... but not Milo, the little Mothman.

He waited up for the lights to come on.

He loved anything that glowed.

Porch lights. Flashlights. Fireflies. Campfires.
If it glowed, Milo wanted to know what it was.
And tonight... tonight the fireflies were dancing outside his cozy little home.

Then something flashed between the trees.
A golden light!
It disappeared.
It flashed again, a little farther over.
Milo's antennae perked up.

“Ooooh,” said Milo. “A mystery light!”
He took one excited step. Then he stopped.
The light was wonderful. But when it started to move...

...it became a little less wonderful.
